INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE «EARLY MAN IN ISLAND ENVIRONMENTS»

Oliena (Nuoro), Sardinia Italy 25 September - 2 October 1988

The First International Conference on Early Man in Islands Environments will be organized by the «Institute of Earth Sciences of the University of Utrecht, the «Sezione di Preistoria del Dipartimento di Archeologia e Storia delle Arti dell'Università di Siena» and the «Soprintendenza Archeologica per le provincie di Sassari e Nuoro», under the support of the «Istituto Italiano di Preistoria e Protostoria and with the collaboration of the «Corbeddu Fundation of Utrecht».

Since 1980 several localities on the island of Sardinia have been discovered with Paleolithic industry. Remains of Paleolithic industry have also been found on many islands of S.E. Asia (Philippines, Sulawesi, Flores, Timor, etc). All these islands have an endemic mammalian fauna with low diversity, and the species are very different from those of the continental faunas.

In our opinion too little attention has been paid to the phenomenon of Paleolithic culture relating to endemic island faunas. How did man reach these islands and what were the environmental requirements for permanent human population? What role did the islands play in the colonization of continent like Australia? How and when has prehistoric man influenced or modified the evolution of island faunas?

These and related fundamental questions will be the central theme of the Conference.

Preliminary program:

I. Pleistocene island environments:

a) Insularity and its effects on faunal evolution. b) Sea level changes in the Pleistocene. Geology, Geography, Climatology. c) Dating Pleistocene island faunas.

II. Pleistocene and Early Holocene man in island environment:

II.1. Arrival routes and journey of man on original environment. a) Mediterranean islands. b) Japan. c) S.E. Asia and Australie. d) Madagascar: a recent example of the influence of man on an island environment.

II.2. The Geography of human evolution. Human fossils in the islands.

III. Round Table: problems about the use of bones. The example of Corbeddu Cave in Sardinia.

Apart from papers on the central theme of the Conference, there will be a round table session, the possibility of posters session, an exhibition, and excursions to pleistocene sites.

Invited speakers have been asked to give keynote lectures on various aspects of the central theme. Special attention will be given to current research and to recently found material.

Offered papers and posters will be selected by the Scientific Committee. Presentation may be given in English, French or Italian.

Secretary of the Conference: c/o Museo Civico Speleologico Archeologico Via Leonardo Da Vinci 5, I-08100 Nuoro, Italy.
